

JFA Factsheet 1

We benefit as you spend - at no cost to you!

Register – then raise free donations when you shop online! On the website you'll find big name retailers like John Lewis, Amazon, eBay and Apple, more than 3,100 shops and sites including most of the major supermarkets, insurance companies, and holiday companies etc. all ready to help you raise money when you shop by linking to the provider through the Easyfundraising site. The retailer pays the donation based on the 'introduction'. Think how much we all spend online each year!

Our 'Good cause' name is 'The John Fisher Association (The JFA)'. We have over 50 supporters so far who, to date, have raised over £2,000 for the school.

What's the catch? The site makes money by monitoring retail habits in the same way as most loyalty schemes. If you are comfortable with this then it is a fairly painless way for you to make money for the school. To minimise the impact on you however, you may, when registering, like to 'unsubscribe' from marketing emails and/or SMS messages and also you can make your user name 'Anonymous' in the 'Your Account' section. The website must adhere to all Data Protection Laws and at any time you can request for your account to be deleted. Full details on the site.

Each retailer pays different rates of donations and may withhold this donation if you use a discount not displayed on the Easyfundraising site or if you place items in the 'basket' direct from their site without having started the shopping in Easyfundraising. If the price is the same please use Easyfundraising!
